Mayor Takes over Chef Bob's Mansion: Use of Public Funds in Question

Trailer 34 reported today that Trailer Park Mayor Andrew Milford has officially changed his residence to what was formerly the mansion of well known culinary artist Bob Turner. However, some criticism has been levied at the Mayor for using Trailer Park treasury funds to purchase the new residence.

“It is the only property fitting for both the official and unofficial duties I have as Mayor,” said Mayor Milford. “We have officially changed the street address of the new residence, so as not to confuse postal workers who carry truck loads of fan mail to me each day.”

As with most political storms that the Mayor has weathered, most bloggers and media commentary suggests that Mayor Milford will soon be in the clear with regards to the new purchase. A recent CNN poll has the Mayor's rating at an all time high, given his landslide re-election on April 1st and upcoming inauguration. Statistics say 93% of Trailer Park residents approve of the Mayor's handling of the economy, including any recent purchases by the village, while 7% remained in trance when asked the question and therefore were listed as undecided.

Chef Bob Turner, who refused to give an exact dollar figure on how much he was paid by the village of Trailer Park, NY for the mansion, did say that it was worth the true value of the property. “This was not in foreclosure,” said Chef Turner. “This was not the housing bailout that some have tried to claim.”

Chef Turner, who some believe has joined an Amish cult given his new look this season, recently moved to a residence at an undisclosed location. His catalog fame and culinary prowess have made it too hard for him to keep his privacy. “I have been fighting off the paparazzi for too long,” he said. “It is time for me to have the silence where I can write that Omega Cookbook we have been promising for years.”

Cookbook or no cookbook, Chef Bob is bound to have plenty of rest living outside the village limits of Trailer Park, NY. “I'll still come by for the inauguration,” he said. “The Mayor has always been a good friend of mine. And I know tofu dogs are always the best part of any celebration, especially his upcoming inauguration.”

Exact times and details for the inauguration have yet to be released by the Mayor's Inaugural Committee, but undisclosed sources say that information will soon be made public.
