Homer Simpson Files for Damages: Randal Roberts Miffed!

Trailer 34 news agency reported today that American legend Homer Simpson has filed for damages against Omega Dining Hall Manager Randal Roberts, stating that the enlightened cover art of Mr. Simpson on this months Chronogram is detrimental to Mr. Simpson's livelihood. The charges go on to claim that Homer Simpson's income depends on the general public viewing him as unintelligent, ignorant and selfish, all of which are qualities that Mr. Robert's painting undermines. Mr. Simpson's youthful attorney, Bart Simpson, issued the following statement on behalf of his father and client. "Yo' dude! Give it up! The only good thing about my dad is his appetite. Painting him to look like a Saint is going to cost our whole family lots of dough!"

Artist and Dining Hall Manager, Randal Roberts is admittedly distraught by the lawsuit, knowing that his seasonal staff income can hardly sustain a long term legal battle with the television icon. Efforts have been made to settle out of court, but no official statement regarding this has been issued by either party. Rumor has it however, that negotiations are in place for the Simpson Family to be invited guests of the Omega Hermitage as a peace offering. "I can understand what Randal is going through," said Hermitage Programmer Brett Bevell. "So if this helps them to talk face to face and find a settlement I am happy to help." "I was only trying to express his loving, humane side," said Randal Roberts when asked about the case. "I had no idea it was going to come to this." Sources say that Homer actually has another agenda of trying to position himself for a 2010 catalog workshop, and that the lawsuit is simply a ploy to get atten-
